RESOLUTION NO. 92-96

A RESOLUTION OF THE NAVAJO COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS
ACTING IN THEIR CAPACITY AS THE NAVAJO COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL
DISTRICT BOARD OF DIRECTORS
IN SUPPORT OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF A LITTLE COLORADO RIVER
WATERSHED MULTI-OBJECTIVE MANAGEMENT PLAN

WHEREAS, the Little Colorado River is the largest watercourse in Navajo County; draining much of Northeast Arizona and part of New Mexico, and

WHEREAS, Navajo County has substantial interest and investment in flood control structures, transportation facilities, economic development, and the management of natural resources within the Little Colorado River Watershed, and

WHEREAS, the Little Colorado River is a complex and dynamic river system with unique problems, and

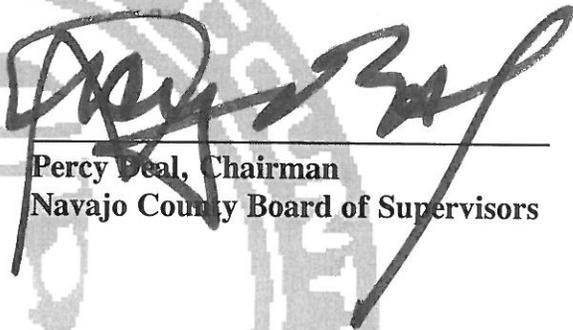

WHEREAS, the analysis of problems involving flood control, transportation, economic development, and natural resource management within the Little Colorado River Watershed is likely to require a multi-disciplinary approach, and

WHEREAS, the solutions to problems involving flood control, transportation, economic development, and natural resource management within the Little Colorado River Watershed are likely to involve various political entities, government agencies, and multiple sources of funding; now

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Navajo County Board of Supervisors, acting in their capacity as the Floodplain Board of Directors for the Navajo County Flood Control District, is committed to working cooperatively with other government agencies, political entities, organizations, and the public in order to develop a multi-objective management plan for the Little Colorado River Watershed, with the goal of addressing and solving problems of flood control, transportation, economic development, and the management of natural resources within the watershed.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that Navajo County is committed to providing funding, if available, towards such efforts needed to develop a multi-objective management plan.

PASSED AND ADOPTED this 16th day of December, 1996.

Percy Deal, Chairman
Navajo County Board of Supervisors

Attest:

Judy Jones, Clerk of the Board
